OVERVIEW

New Alberta English Language Arts Resources

This list of English language arts resources, Kindergarten to Grade 9, contains resources that have been authorized for use in Alberta schools. Alberta Learning selects and authorizes the best possible instructional materials for the implementation of approved programs of study. The resource authorization categories are basic, authorized teaching or support, and the status is noted for each resource.

Basic learning resources are those student learning resources authorized by Alberta Learning as the most appropriate for addressing the majority of outcomes of the course(s) or substantial components of the course(s); or the most appropriate for meeting general outcomes across two or more grade levels.

Support learning resources are those student learning resources authorized by Alberta Learning to assist in addressing some of the outcomes of the course(s) or components of the course(s); or to assist in meeting the outcomes across two or more grade levels.

Authorized Teaching resources are those teaching resources identified as the best available resources to support the implementation of programs of study and courses; they may be teacher guides to accompany student resources or teacher professional resources. The authorized teaching guides are listed with the student resources, while the authorized teaching professional resources are listed at the end of the booklet.

These Alberta authorized resources were selected from the English language arts resource list approved by the Western Canadian Protocol (WCP). The WCP review of resources began in fall 1997 and was completed in spring 2001.

This list of these new Alberta English language arts resources is organized by grade, Kindergarten to Grade 9. The WCP categories used as organizers are integrated resources, series, book collections, individual student resources, and individual teaching resources.

Note:

Alberta Learning strongly recommends that teachers read all selections in the student texts and all activities in the teacher guides prior to using them with students. Careful consideration should be given to the sensitivities of both the student audience and the community.

Resource Annotations

Annotations providing more detailed information for these Alberta resources may be found on the WCP web site at <<http://www.wcp.ca>>.

INTEGRATED RESOURCES

Collections

Collections provides learning experiences in the six language arts and promotes their integration through instructional activities. The components for each grade include student anthologies, a program information guide, teacher's resource modules, strategy cards, audiopacks, assessment handbook and other handbooks.

Student anthologies in a variety of genres focus on the themes of relationships and identity, genre study, science investigation, language and communication, and social studies exploration. Planning, teaching and assessment suggestions are fully integrated. These resources allow for different learner needs, interests and learning styles, and foster collaborative and interactive learning. Suggestions for information management, the use of technology and cross-curricular connections are included. The student anthologies include many Canadian authors, while providing a global perspective.

Cornerstones
Cornerstones is a fully integrated resource that provides a framework upon which to build flexible language arts programming. The components for each grade consist of a teacher's guide, an assessment guide, blackline masters, and two student anthologies, containing four thematic units each. Each anthology contains three themes: Personal (self, relationships), Heritage (social studies, issues), Environment (science), and a genre study (literature). The anthology selections feature Canadian content combined with a global focus. These resources allow for extension and individualization, and provide support for differentiating instruction. Student activities involve all the language arts. Extension activities encourage critical and creative thinking and allow students, both independently and in groups, to demonstrate knowledge in a variety of ways. Links are provided to other literature and media, to other curriculum areas, to technology, and to the home.

Cornerstones

Cornerstones is a fully integrated resource that provides a framework upon which to build flexible language arts programming. The components for each grade consist of a teacher's guide, an assessment guide, blackline masters, and two student anthologies, containing four thematic units each.

Each anthology contains three themes: Personal (self, relationships), Heritage (social studies, issues), Environment (science), and a genre study (literature). The anthology selections feature Canadian content combined with a global focus. These resources allow for extension and individualization, and provide support for differentiating instruction. Student activities involve all the language arts. Extension activities encourage critical and creative thinking and allow students, both independently and in groups, to demonstrate knowledge in a variety of ways. Links are provided to other literature and media, to other curriculum areas, to technology, and to the home.

Nelson Language Arts

Nelson Language Arts integrates the six language arts, makes cross-curricular connections, and presents instructional and assessment activities that accommodate a variety of learning approaches and abilities. The components for each grade consist of two student texts, each containing three units, with accompanying teacher's guides.

These resources feature Canadian content and provide a variety of genre, media texts, and learning strategies. The student texts and teacher's guides are organized into six non-sequential thematic units, each focusing on one language literacy context: personal, information, media, social, technical, and cultural. Goals for each unit are developed and evaluated through a variety of pre-, during-, and post-reading activities. A writer's handbook is also available.

INTEGRATED RESOURCES

Collections

Collections provides learning experiences in the six language arts and promotes their integration through instructional activities. The components for each grade include student anthologies, a program information guide, teacher's resource modules, strategy cards, audiopacks, assessment handbook and other handbooks.

Student anthologies in a variety of genres focus on the themes of relationships and identity, genre study, science investigation, language and communication, and social studies exploration. Planning, teaching and assessment suggestions are fully integrated. These resources allow for different learner needs, interests and learning styles, and foster collaborative and interactive learning. Suggestions for information management, the use of technology and cross-curricular connections are included. The student anthologies include many Canadian authors, while providing a global perspective.

INTEGRATED RESOURCES

Collections

Collections provides learning experiences in the six language arts and promotes their integration through instructional activities. The components for each grade include student anthologies, a program information guide, teacher's resource modules, strategy cards, audiopacks, assessment handbook and other handbooks.

Student anthologies in a variety of genres focus on the themes of relationships and identity, genre study, science investigation, language and communication, and social studies exploration. Planning, teaching and assessment suggestions are fully integrated. These resources allow for different learner needs, interests and learning styles, and foster collaborative and interactive learning. Suggestions for information management, the use of technology and cross-curricular connections are included. The student anthologies include many Canadian authors, while providing a global perspective.

Cornerstones

Cornerstones is a fully integrated resource that provides a framework upon which to build flexible language arts programming. The components for each grade consist of a teacher's guide, an assessment guide, blackline masters, and two student anthologies, containing four thematic units each.

Each anthology contains three themes: Personal (self, relationships), Heritage (social studies, issues), Environment (science), and a genre study (literature). The anthology selections feature Canadian content combined with a global focus. These resources allow for extension and individualization, and provide support for differentiating instruction. Student activities involve all the language arts. Extension activities encourage critical and creative thinking and allow students, both independently and in groups, to demonstrate knowledge in a variety of ways. Links are provided to other literature and media, to other curriculum areas, to technology, and to the home.

Nelson Language Arts

Nelson Language Arts integrates the six language arts, makes cross-curricular connections, and presents instructional and assessment activities that accommodate a variety of learning approaches and abilities. The components for each grade consist of two student texts, each containing three units, with accompanying teacher's guides.

These resources feature Canadian content and provide a variety of genre, media texts, and learning strategies. The student texts and teacher's guides are organized into six non-sequential thematic units, each focusing on one language literacy context: personal, information, media, social, technical, and cultural. Goals for each unit are developed and evaluated through a variety of pre-, during-, and post-reading activities. A writer's handbook is also available.

INTEGRATED RESOURCES

Crossroads

This integrated resource, consisting of student anthologies and accompanying teacher's guides, offers a large selection of Canadian materials, complemented by a variety of international texts. The resource provides a variety of opportunities for students to experience the six language arts and to use the language arts across the disciplines.

The four anthologies, one for each of Grades 7, 8, 9, and 10, feature a wide range of Canadian selections with an emphasis on western Canadian texts, including Aboriginal and multicultural perspectives. Each anthology contains a main table of contents organized thematically and an alternate table of contents organized around broad topics, such as humour and satire. The activity-based anthologies are organized into six main units: Personal Focus, Science and Technology, Media Perspectives, Issues, and two genre units. Each unit features a unit-at-a-glance page that identifies key learning outcomes and provides end-of-unit reflection activities that form the basis for formative evaluation. There are cross-curricular links throughout.

The four teacher's guides, one binder for each of Grades 7, 8, 9, and 10, are companion references to their respective student anthologies. They provide: unit overviews with goals and teacher support for a wide range of student learning activities; curricular goals that are linked with the general learning outcomes in a correlation guide; strong support for anthology selections and process-oriented activities; rubrics, language masters, blackline masters, and a wide assortment of assessment and evaluation tools for a wide range of activities; suggested ESL support and adapted activities to challenge learners and to support struggling learners; and follow-up suggestions and strategies for students needing help in specific areas.

- All four student anthologies have an appealing layout with colourful visuals and offer extensive Canadian content at an average readability level, with options to adapt or extend activities for a variety of student learning needs, including ESL. They contain a diverse and balanced representation of cultures, ages, and gender.
- The teacher's guides provide a rich source of student learning activities. The effectiveness of the guides can be enhanced through careful planning to ensure that the key learning outcomes receive appropriate emphasis and that students learn to use the teacher-modelled strategies and become independent learners. The activities in the language conventions sections will be most effective if students are taught how knowledge of language conventions can help them solve problems with their written expression.
- Without an index, it may be difficult to locate specific activities in the teacher's guides.

Identities

This integrated resource, consisting of student and teacher materials, provides a variety of opportunities for students to learn how to use the six language arts. Identities offers a wide range of contemporary texts that are linked with the five general learning outcomes identified in the ELA Curriculum Framework.

The three student anthologies, one for each of Grades 7, 8, and 9, feature a variety of print and visual texts in a variety of genres and themes appropriate for average readers. Each anthology is organized into eight thematic units, some of which focus on a single genre and others on a variety of genres. Each unit is organized around a set of student goals. For each reading selection the text includes four types of activities: before reading, while reading, first response to the selection, and more in-depth learning activities. A Make Connections section at the end of each unit ties together the student learning goals of the unit using a series of questions and activities. In addition, the student texts feature: Tips On pages that suggest or explain specific reading, viewing, or listening strategies and techniques; Focus On pages that suggest and explain specific written, visual, or oral strategies and techniques; a Help Yourself section that provides students with strategies dealing with the six language arts, the inquiry and research process, grammar, and punctuation and capitalization; and an index.

The three teacher handbooks, one for each of Grades 7, 8, and 9, contain four main sections: (1) Instruction and Assessment Design presents suggestions for unit planning, explains the ELA learning outcomes, discusses guiding principles for language learning, explains integrated language arts, and provides information on assessment, including rubrics, portfolios, and the importance of metacognition.

(2) A Model for Instruction and Assessment Design relates the text goals to the ELA learning outcomes.

(3) Sample Units is divided into modules that relate to each of the student text selections. Each sample unit draws attention to the learning outcomes and assessment strategies and suggests learning activities, differentiated instruction tips, process-oriented tips, extension ideas, and related resources.

(4) Reproducible Worksheets includes rubric templates, graphic organizers, goal-setting sheets, story maps, self-assessment sheets, and so on.

- The resource features a variety of texts, including a mix of literary and transactional texts, but the Aboriginal voice is limited.
- Author information in the student texts is limited.
- Because of the contemporary nature of the materials in the student texts, information may become dated. For example, the web sites may become obsolete, and the names of organizations and their current leaders may change.
- Teachers should review any web sites before referring students to them.

SightLines

SightLines offers a wide range of contemporary materials that support outcome-based teaching and learning and are linked with the five general outcomes identified in the ELA Curriculum Framework. This integrated resource, consisting of both student and teacher materials, provides a variety of opportunities to learn how to use the six language arts and to use the language arts to learn in other curricula. The four student anthologies, one for each of grades 7, 8, 9 and 10, provide challenging reading. They feature a wide variety of print, oral, and visual texts in a variety of genres and themes. Anthology selections feature extensive Canadian content, including Aboriginal perspectives. The texts and activities are organized into four thematic units: Look, Look Again, Look Back, and Look Beyond.

Each of the student anthologies deal with complex issues from real life and require high reading and comprehension levels. Selections in all three anthologies stimulate critical and creative thinking and thoughtful, personal response. A combination of mature content, voices, and themes, and frequent use of complex imagery, vocabulary, and description make this challenging reading. Some selections in each student anthology deal with such controversial issues as the supernatural, abuse, violence and divorce. The teacher guide provides support for dealing with these controversial issues through literature. The audio packs provide professional readings or dramatizations of some selections.

ResourceLines

ResourceLines 7/8 and ResourceLines 9/10 contain strategies for learning and using all six language arts processes in authentic contexts. They also include a chapter on researching and a language handbook addressing usage, grammar, spelling, and style.

INTEGRATED RESOURCES

Crossroads

This integrated resource, consisting of student anthologies and accompanying teacher's guides, offers a large selection of Canadian materials, complemented by a variety of international texts. The resource provides a variety of opportunities for students to experience the six language arts and to use the language arts across the disciplines.

The four anthologies, one for each of Grades 7, 8, 9, and 10, feature a wide range of Canadian selections with an emphasis on western Canadian texts, including Aboriginal and multicultural perspectives. Each anthology contains a main table of contents organized thematically and an alternate table of contents organized around broad topics, such as humour and satire. The activity-based anthologies are organized into six main units: Personal Focus, Science and Technology, Media Perspectives, Issues, and two genre units. Each unit features a unit-at-a-glance page that identifies key learning outcomes and provides end-of-unit reflection activities that form the basis for formative evaluation. There are cross-curricular links throughout.

The four teacher's guides, one binder for each of Grades 7, 8, 9, and 10, are companion references to their respective student anthologies. They provide: unit overviews with goals and teacher support for a wide range of student learning activities; curricular goals that are linked with the general learning outcomes in a correlation guide; strong support for anthology selections and process-oriented activities; rubrics, language masters, blackline masters, and a wide assortment of assessment and evaluation tools for a wide range of activities; suggested ESL support and adapted activities to challenge learners and to support struggling learners; and follow-up suggestions and strategies for students needing help in specific areas.

- All four student anthologies have an appealing layout with colourful visuals and offer extensive Canadian content at an average readability level, with options to adapt or extend activities for a variety of student learning needs, including ESL. They contain a diverse and balanced representation of cultures, ages, and gender.
- The teacher's guides provide a rich source of student learning activities. The effectiveness of the guides can be enhanced through careful planning to ensure that the key learning outcomes receive appropriate emphasis and that students learn to use the teacher-modelled strategies and become independent learners. The activities in the language conventions sections will be most effective if students are taught how knowledge of language conventions can help them solve problems with their written expression.
- Without an index, it may be difficult to locate specific activities in the teacher's guides.

Elements of English

Elements of English 9 supports students' achievement of the learning outcomes identified in the ELA Curriculum Framework. Consisting of a student text and a teacher's guide, this integrated resource provides a variety of language learning opportunities. Through experiencing a range of genres, students have opportunities to apply language conventions to a wide variety of situations.

The student text selections feature significant Canadian content, including Aboriginal and western Canadian perspectives. Before-reading and after-reading activities accompany each text selection. The text is organized into four study units:

- (1) Language and Form illustrates different forms of language in a variety of time periods from Shakespearean to contemporary times.
- (2) Literature features a wide range of genres, authors, and themes. Text selections include a variety of reading levels, with most selections geared to the average Grade 9 reader.
- (3) Media investigates the range of media influences to which students are exposed.
- (4) The Reference Shelf provides information on grammar, spelling and language conventions, the writing process, and forms of communication.

The teacher's guide includes: a Course Planning Section with correlations of each suggested activity to the ELA Curriculum Framework; lesson plans with suggested teaching strategies; reproducible pages for reading, writing, research, cooperative work, and media study; assessment and evaluation materials; and suggestions for teaching ESL students and struggling learners.

Identities

This integrated resource, consisting of student and teacher materials, provides a variety of opportunities for students to learn how to use the six language arts. Identities offers a wide range of contemporary texts that are linked with the five general learning outcomes identified in the ELA Curriculum Framework.

The three student anthologies, one for each of Grades 7, 8, and 9, feature a variety of print and visual texts in a variety of genres and themes appropriate for average readers. Each anthology is organized into eight thematic units, some of which focus on a single genre and others on a variety of genres. Each unit is organized around a set of student goals. For each reading selection the text includes four types of activities: before reading, while reading, first response to the selection, and more in-depth learning activities. A Make Connections section at the end of each unit ties together the student learning goals of the unit using a series of questions and activities. In addition, the student texts feature: Tips On pages that suggest or explain specific reading, viewing, or listening strategies and techniques; Focus On pages that suggest and explain specific written, visual, or oral strategies and techniques; a Help Yourself section that provides students with strategies dealing with the six language arts, the inquiry and research process, grammar, and punctuation and capitalization; and an index.

The three teacher handbooks, one for each of Grades 7, 8, and 9, contain four main sections: (1) Instruction and Assessment Design presents suggestions for unit planning, explains the ELA learning outcomes, discusses guiding principles for language learning, explains integrated language arts, and provides information on assessment, including rubrics, portfolios, and the importance of metacognition.

(2) A Model for Instruction and Assessment Design relates the text goals to the ELA learning outcomes.

(3) Sample Units is divided into modules that relate to each of the student text selections. Each sample unit draws attention to the learning outcomes and assessment strategies and suggests learning activities, differentiated instruction tips, process-oriented tips, extension ideas, and related resources.

(4) Reproducible Worksheets includes rubric templates, graphic organizers, goal-setting sheets, story maps, self-assessment sheets, and so on.

- The resource features a variety of texts, including a mix of literary and transactional texts, but the Aboriginal voice is limited.
- Author information in the student texts is limited.
- Because of the contemporary nature of the materials in the student texts, information may become dated. For example, the web sites may become obsolete, and the names of organizations and their current leaders may change.
- Teachers should review any web sites before referring students to them.

SightLines

SightLines offers a wide range of contemporary materials that support outcome-based teaching and learning and are linked with the five general outcomes identified in the ELA Curriculum Framework. This integrated resource, consisting of both student and teacher materials, provides a variety of opportunities to learn how to use the six language arts and to use the language arts to learn in other curricula. The four student anthologies, one for each of grades 7, 8, 9 and 10, provide challenging reading. They feature a wide variety of print, oral, and visual texts in a variety of genres and themes. Anthology selections feature extensive Canadian content, including Aboriginal perspectives. The texts and activities are organized into four thematic units: Look, Look Again, Look Back, and Look Beyond.

Each of the student anthologies deal with complex issues from real life and require high reading and comprehension levels. Selections in all three anthologies stimulate critical and creative thinking and thoughtful, personal response. A combination of mature content, voices, and themes, and frequent use of complex imagery, vocabulary, and description make this challenging reading. Some selections in each student anthology deal with such controversial issues as the supernatural, abuse, violence and divorce. The teacher guide provides support for dealing with these controversial issues through literature. The audio packs provide professional readings or dramatizations of some selections.

ResourceLines

ResourceLines 7/8 and ResourceLines 9/10 contain strategies for learning and using all six language arts processes in authentic contexts. They also include a chapter on researching and a language handbook addressing usage, grammar, spelling, and style.
